

IN THE MIDST OF THE WAR IN IRAN... THERE IS GOOD NEWS!

Dear friend,

As we witness the escalating conflict developing around Iran, it is clear that a swift resolution is nowhere in sight. The devastating blockade in the Strait of Hormuz has triggered a catastrophic economic freefall, plunging the Iranian currency to historic lows. Today, millions of desperate parents are struggling to buy food for their children.

When the war began, brave Iranian citizens took to the streets in peaceful anti-government protests. The Islamic regime responded with absolute brutality, leaving more than 30,000 civilians dead and thousands more imprisoned, including 254 Christians arrested through house-to-house raids.

After suffering 47 years of repression under cruel Islamic rule, daily life for ordinary families has reached a breaking point. For Christian families, the situation has become severe as persecution has sharply escalated during this war.

Yet, in the very midst of these immense hardships, an extraordinary movement is unfolding: millions of Iranians are turning their backs on Islam and embracing Christianity.

Because of your faithful generosity, we have partnered with ICNET for several years to broadcast life-giving Christian programming via satellite television directly into Iranian homes.

Your giving brings hope in a land gripped by fear. We have witnessed the power of that hope firsthand.

During a recent live broadcast, a man named *Reza called into the studio. Reza was a hardened gang member from one of the poorest, most volatile neighborhoods of Tehran. He was angry, heavily burdened with guilt and spoke in a rough street style. He demanded to know why he was forced to endure such a broken life when he had no choice in being born.

Our host gently explained that though we don't choose our birth, we are given the free will to choose how we live and who we serve. He shared that Jesus Christ forgives even the darkest sins and offers a completely new life. Because the phone lines were flooded, the host eventually had to end the call.

Name changed for privacy*

But Reza called back immediately. He begged the host not to hang up, openly weeping and confessing that he was truly desperate to find peace. Right there on the live broadcast, Reza surrendered his heart to Christ. The hardened gangster fell to his knees and wept before the Lord.

Throughout the week, the impact of that moment rippled across the nation. Dozens of callers contacted the station, deeply moved by Reza's brokenness and sincere repentance. Inspired by his radical transformation, many others gave their hearts to Christ as well.

A few days later, Reza called the station once more, but this time, his voice was radiant with joy. He shared that for the first time in his life, he had slept peacefully, and that Christ had beautifully appeared to him in a dream.

Reza's decision to follow Christ came with a heavy cost.

Because of his bold new faith, he was tracked down and imprisoned by authorities. Yet, his faith remains unshaken. Even behind bars, Reza continues to share the Gospel with fellow inmates and two prisoners have already given their hearts to Christ.

The authorities successfully locked Reza in a prison cell. But they can never imprison the Gospel.

To keep people in the dark and eliminate outside information, the Iranian government continues to intermittently shut down the internet. But the Gospel message via satellite, continues to break through into homes and reach hearts.

During these dark days, this ministry is a vital life-line for so many.

In fact, ICNET's prayer line is active 24 hours a day! Desperate families are calling around the clock asking for prayer and physical help as they navigate severe shortages of food and medicine.

We are not just broadcasting hope; we are delivering it.

Through our many years of working inside Iran, we have established trusted underground Christian networks. Iran's underground house-church network has become the primary source of humanitarian aid during this war. Through trained volunteers deployed right to the border lines, we are able to securely pass your financial support directly into the hands of suffering families inside the country.

Ongoing Christian broadcasting and cross-border relief operations require significant resources. Please stand with us today by continuing to support this vital ministry. Your gifts keep the broadcast alive and fund emergency relief, ensuring that even in Iran's darkest hour, the light of Christ continues to change lives.

May the Lord bless you for your support to reach hearts and bring aid to suffering Christians in Iran!

PS: Though I would like to see the Islamic government fall, I truly believe that our satellite broadcasting that reaches millions of people is most effective in changing the hearts and minds of people in Iran.
